MESSAGE TO OUR VALUED CUSTOMERS

Hello. How are you? I hope all of you are doing well. From July 14th to 17th, there was a study and training held at IREC (International Recycling Education Center) at our company. Eight students from a local university college joined this study and training. Also, three workers from other companies all over Japan and Two employees of our company learned recycling vehicles through this training. Each trainee had classes to become a professional automobile recycling technician. They learned the Theory of Venous Industry, including how ELV (End of Life Vehicle) is recycled and how important the recycling area is in our industrial society. They also learned composition of vehicles, resources recycled, and operation manuals about how to disassemble vehicles and load a container and so on. The students came from Kanazawa Institute of Technology offering a higher education specializing in engineering and technology. The students included not only undergraduates but graduates researching solar energy usually. Since this training was treated as a regular accredited class, the students earned credit for their each major by participating in this training. This training at IREC could offer much practical knowledge to the each trainee, and opened their specializing area in many ways for their future.
